1. READING

Read the following text . What is it about?

Daily Scrum Meeting

Every morning, the development team has a daily Scrum meeting. The meeting is short and usually lasts about 15 minutes.

Today, there are six developers, one tester, and the Scrum Master in the meeting. There is also a new intern who is observing the team.

The Scrum Master starts the meeting and asks, "Is there any problem with today's tasks?" One developer answers, "No, there isn't any serious problem, but I need help with a bug."

Then the Scrum Master asks, "Are there any updates on the mobile app?" The tester replies, "Yes, there are three new features ready for testing."

Another developer asks, "Is there a meeting with the client this afternoon?" The Scrum Master says, "No, there isn't. It was cancelled yesterday."

Before the meeting ends, the Scrum Master asks, "Are there any questions?" Nobody has any questions, so the team is ready to start working.

Everyone leaves the meeting with a clear plan for the day.

1. LANGUAGE

THERE + BE

Let's pay attention to the following structure in English.

It is used to talk about 'existence'.
